Travelling around Australia is easy when you live at Sanctuary Park

Imagine a lifestyle where you can pack up your caravan and set off into the distance whenever the urge strikes you.

Now imagine doing that and not having to worry about who will look after your house, maintain your gardens or clean your gutters while you're away.

Before moving into Sanctuary Park Retirement Community at Nambour, Colin and Gwen said the thought of leaving their big house for months stopped them from doing the travelling they wanted.

Gwen and Colin have lived in Sanctuary Park for more than two years, and said they did a lot of research into retirement villages before they decided to move to Nambour.

"We came across Sanctuary Park when we were travelling around Queensland," Gwen said.

"We visited the village and just loved it. We loved the large open spaces and not feeling closed in; and the fact that it was surrounded by rainforest just blew us away. .

"Having somewhere to store our caravan on-site was a major factor in our decision to move into the village. It means a lot to us that we don't have to worry about our house when we go away. We don't have to ask neighbours to water our plants or collect our mail like you do when you live in suburbia. It is a huge relief to know that our place is secure and our gardens are taken care of from the moment we hit the road.

"Where we were living previously we had to keep our caravan in storage and it was hard to get it in and out. But having it here on-site with us makes it so easy to just pick up and go on trips whenever we want to.

"The fact Churches of Christ Care offers other care and support services to the village, as well as operating a number of higher care facilities in South East Queensland, was another big deciding factor for us.

"I would definitely encourage people in the market for a retirement village, to have a look at Sanctuary Park; they might just love it as much as we do."

Sanctuary Park Retirement Community currently consists of 35 beautiful villas (some stand alone homes), and Stage 3a, currently under construction, will see an additional 18 units added to the village. The total number for this unique location will only be 71 so there are limited opportunities to live in this beautiful environment.

There is also no need to sell your home before securing the unit of your choice at Sanctuary Park. With our exclusive expression of interest program, you can secure first right of refusal for a limited time while you consider your options.
